BALLOT IN 11 STATES, OFF-YEAR ELECTION

DISTINGUISHED BY BITTERNESS OF LOCAL ISSUES

2 GOVERNORS, 3 MEMBERS OF CONGRESS, DOZENS OF MAYORS VOTED ON

TRACE OF NATIONAL TINGE IN MISSISSIPPI AND NEW YORK

(By United Press)

Voters balloted in eleven states today in an off-year election distinguished chiefly by the bitterness of the local issues being contested in several districts.

Two governors, three members of congress and dozens of mayors and state and county officials were voted on.

The only trace of a national tinge to this dullest of off-year elections was possibly in Mississippi and New York. In Mississippi, Thomas Bilbo, running for governor, split with the Ku Klux Klan over his refusal to pledge an anti-Smith delegation to the next democratic national convention. The volume of the "silent vote" against Bilbo may be taken to indicate in some measure the sentiment against Al Smith, the south.

In New York, observers were inclined to believe that democratic gains or losses in the election of 150 members of the state assembly might indicate the trend of Smith strength in his own state.

New York also voted on a successor to the late Representative W. W. Magee in the 34th district, Syracuse, which is republican. Henry B. Brewster, democrat; Clarence E. Hancock, republican, and John W. Hein, socialist, are contesting the place.

In Pennsylvania, interest in local issues all over the state was dominated by the contests of independents against the Mellon organization in Pittsburgh and the Vane organization in Philadelphia, both of whom were expected to win.

The whole nation watched Kentucky, where a governor will be elected on the issue of abolishing horse racing. The state has swung between democratic and republican in recent elections, but sentiment over the turn question has split both parties and made the election almost non-partisan.

In Ohio, the Anti-Saloon League question was at stake over the vote on the Marshall bill, which would permit justices of the peace to operate under the fee system. The Anti-Saloon League endorsed the bill in the interest of more rigid drug enforcement.

Violence marred the voting in Ohio when two homes were bombed in Campbell, where the mayoralty campaign was bitter. Ohio also voted on a successor in congress to the late A. E. B. Stephens, second district.

Cleveland voted on a charter amendment which would overthrow city manager plan of government.

The other congressional election was in Philadelphia, where James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States, was unopposed for election to the seat once occupied by Sen. William S. Vare and more recently by James M. Hazlett, who resigned.

New Jersey voted on a state assembly, seven state senators and a $30,000,000 road bond issue.

Detroit, which has voted wet before, chooses between J. W. Smith, a militant wet, and John C. Lodge for mayor. Smith said prohibition cannot and will not be enforced in Detroit.

San Francisco voted for mayor. The incumbent, James Rolph, has been mayor for 16 years and seeks another four-year term. It is virtually a non-partisan vote as far as Rolph is concerned.

Another election of outstanding interest was in Concord, N. H., where Miss Helen Jones, a 24-year-old college graduate and telephone operator, was conceded a good chance of being elected mayor. She has promised a strictly business administration.

MILL CITY MAN DIES FROM HEART STRAIN

Minneapolis, Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Henry Avery, 58, died from heart strain due to overexertion after dashing two blocks to gain a streetcar before the gates closed. He succumbed after riding two blocks. The body was identified at the morgue by a brother last night.

Rehabilitation of Flood-Stricken New England

CRUDE OIL PRODUCTION IN ANOTHER DECLINE

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Crude oil production throughout the United States took another decided decline for the week ended Nov. 5, according to estimates released today by the Oil and Gas Journal.

National production, daily average, slumped from 2,479,647 barrels to 2,462,062 barrels. Light oil decrease was 17,522 barrels.

3 BOYS LOSE LIVES AND 79 ORPHANS SAVED

FIRE EARLY TODAY IN CATHOLIC ORPHANAGE NEAR BERNARDSVILLE, N. J.

FLAMES STARTED FROM EXPLOSION OF OIL HEATER IN A STABLE

Bernardsville, N. J., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Three boys were reported to have been killed and 79 children rescued in a fire early today in St. John the Baptist orphanage, a Roman Catholic institution, at Ladstone. Some of the orphans were said to have escaped by jumping from windows. One nun was overcome.

State police were informed that the three children reported to have lost their lives were burned to death and that all were under five years of age.

The fire started from the explosion of an oil heater in a stable which had been converted into a dormitory. All the children there were between three and six years old.

Because of lack of water firemen were unable to do much and the place burned to the ground.

In the absence of water, the firemen fought the blaze with chemicals but were unable to do more than to prevent its spread to adjoining buildings, where the little girls of the orphanage were housed.

It was daylight before the fire burned out.

A priest and a workman at the orphanage helped to take the boys out of the burning building and their heroic work prevented a large loss of life. It was thought all had been saved until a checkup showed three boys missing.

About 150 children in all are cared for at the orphanage, which is in charge of an Italian order of nuns.

The converted stable was a large structure of brick and wood well detached from the other buildings of the orphanage. The roof of the building collapsed into the burning interior after the children had been removed and hours after the fire it was impossible to find any trace of the three missing boys in the smoldering ruins.

Four sisters were in charge when the fire broke out in the one-story dormitory structure, and the sisters ran through it, carrying out some and leading others.

The rescued children were housed in the buildings used by the girls.

MISUNDERSTANDING BETWEEN RELATIVES OF RUTH ELDER

New York, Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—A misunderstanding between relatives may serve to detract from the welcome for Ruth Elder when the pretty aviatrix arrives aboard the Aquitania, Friday.

Lyle Womack, her husband, arrived yesterday from Panama. On the same boat was Mrs. Susan Odum, aunt of the girl flier, but she and Womack were not on speaking terms and both declined to discuss the cause of their alleged feeling.

Of the future, Womack said, "I dislike to interrupt any of Ruth's plans but I am not here to meet Ruth Elder. I came to meet Ruth Womack, my wife."

"When all the fuss over her return has ended I hope that she will agree to return to Panama with me. We have never been estranged and such reports are untrue. And we still love each other as much as the day we were married."

Meanwhile plans went ahead in New York for a joyous reception to the girl and her co-pilot, George Halde-man.

Rumors That Striking Miners in Southern Colorado Coal Fields Plan to Free Leaders

REAR ADMIRAL MAGRUDER IS WITHOUT JOB

CRITICIZED THE WAY NAVY DEPARTMENT RAN THE NAVY

MAGRUDER NOW HAS TASK OF DEFINING CORRECTIVE MEASURES

Washington, Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder today was without a job because of his criticism of the way the navy department is running the navy.

But the former commandant at Philadelphia faced what Secretary of the Navy Wilbur considers a big task—preparation, while "awaiting orders," of measures to correct the extravagances and inefficiencies he charged existed.

The admiral probably will spend many hours over blue prints and figures. He got Secretary Wilbur's permission to use the navy department library.

Magruder does not have to stay here. His orders allow him the freedom of the entire country. He was given this liberty, it is understood, so he might gather data where he pleased. He probably will remain here most of the time, and certainly will be on hand when congress convenes to appear before congressional committees. Champions already have risen who will want to question him for the record.

It was indicated at the navy department that the deposed admiral may "await orders" a long time. Just what will be done with him depends upon the showing he makes in drafting economy plans. He will be given plenty of time, it is believed.

Meanwhile, he will have an opportunity to talk, if he desires. It was newspaper interviews he gave after publication of his magazine articles on navy inefficiency that accentuated his split with the department.

He also is scheduled to enter a public debate in New York, Dec. 5, with Betrand Russell, publicist, on the negative of the question, "Should Navies Be Abolished?"

The admiral's public statements in the next few weeks as well as the results in his economy plan will have something to do with final disposition of his case. It is generally believed that if his conduct in the next few weeks satisfies the navy department he will be sent to another post. If he arouses the department further, however, disciplinary measures—such as reduction of pay—may be taken.

LOGAN, ILL., 'TOUGHEST SPOT IN EGYPT'

Benton, Ill., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Vigilantes, led by a special deputy sheriff, set out today to bring sweetness and light to Logan, Ill., which, according to Sheriff James S. Pritchard, is the toughest spot in Egypt.

Logan, where men are craphooters except when they are bootleggers, makes Herrin at its bloody best look like a haven of rest and peace. Pritchard intimated in a complaint filed here yesterday.

It is a town without gambling halls, the sheriff admitted, but he explained the only reason was that whenever anybody wanted to gamble he rattled a pair of dice on Main street, and was surrounded immediately by persons with similar intent.

Logan police are not wholly unaware of the nature of the contest in which these groups of men in the street indulge, but are unable to do anything about it, the sheriff charged. Gunplay is frequent variant, he alleged, and liquor, such as it is, can be obtained on the slightest provocation, or even without.

Henry S. Smothers was appointed special deputy sheriff to lead the vigilantes in the cleanup of the town.

$9,000,000 MERGER OF MIDWEST BAKERS

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—A $9,000,000 merger of midwestern biscuit manufacturers to be the third largest organization of its kind in the United States is contemplated, according to K. F. MacLellan, president of United Biscuit Co.

Plants involved in the proposed consolidation include Union, St. Louis; Sawyer, Chicago; Lakeside, Toledo (which comprise the United) and Strietman, Cincinnati; Felber, Columbus; Manchester, Fargo and Sioux Falls; Merchants, Denver; and Chicago Carton Co., Chicago.

Stockholders of the various companies have been asked to vote on the proposal. If consummated, the merger would rank third to National Biscuit Co. and the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co.

CHARGED WITH BEING COURIER OF PRINCE CAROL

NAVAL LIEUTENANT THEODORU ARRESTED AT A FRONTIER STATION

BUCHAREST DISPATCHES RECORD INCIDENT, AUTOMOBILE SEIZED

Vienna, Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Naval Lieutenant M. Theodoru, arrested at the frontier station of Osanak, was held under close guard today at Temisora, Roumania, charged with being a courier for Prince Carol, according to Bucharest dispatches.

It is reported the automobile in which Lieutenant Theodoru was riding contained documents similar to those seized from Former Under-Secretary of State Manolescu, whose arrest caused the exposure of a plot to place Carol on the throne now occupied by his six-year-old son Michael.

The indictment under which it is proposed to prosecute Manolescu has been published. It charges him with attempting to foment a revolt and to instigate civil war. Officials asserted Manolescu had implicated several other people in the plot, declaring they were communicating with Carol in code messages.

Dispatches said Roumanian authorities had freed General Theodoru, arrested as a Carolist sympathizer.

London, Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—An Exchange Telegraph Vienna dispatch reports from Bucharest that Former Under-Secretary of State Manolescu has been charged with attempting to overthrow the King—the penalty for which is 20 years' imprisonment.

The dispatch reports also that Mme. Manolescu has been arrested, charged with being her husband's accomplice.

MRS. BERYL C. WARD GRANTED DIVORCE

Reno, Nev., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Beryl Curtis Ward, wife of Walter S. Ward, son of the president of the Ward Baking company, has been granted a decree of divorce on grounds of desertion, failure to provide and infidelity. Mrs. Ward was awarded custody of two minor children.

Ward was indicted in 1922 for the murder of Clarence Peters, a sailor, whose body was found in Westchester county, N. Y. He was acquitted later to be sued for damages by the parents of the slain sailor. The case never came to trial. Ward disappeared soon after it was filed, and later was found in Cuba.

ARMED GUARDS ON DUTY IN CASE OF ATTACK

DEPUTIES ARMED WITH SHOT-GUNS, MACHINE GUNS, RIFLES, ETC.

TEAR BOMBS AND FIRE HOSE ALSO UTILIZED FOR DEFENSE

Pueblo, Colo., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Rumor that striking miners in southern Colorado coal fields planned to free 10 I. W. W. leaders from the Pueblo jail caused a force of 50 armed guards to remain on duty early today in case of a surprise attack.

When 24 automobile loads of strikers left Walsenburg early this morning, a report spread that they were to meet about 100 more car loads of miners at Sand Canon and invade Pueblo to free their leaders.

Sheriff H. G. Tennis immediately threw a guard of 100 deputies around the jail. They were armed with shot guns, machine guns, rifles, tear bombs, fire hose and side arms.

Upon failure of the caravan of strikers to arrive after several hours, about half of the guards were sent home. The others remained on guard in case of a sudden attack.

Among the prisoners in the Pueblo jail are Roger Franzese, Kristen Svanum, and A. S. Embree, strike leaders brought here secretly from Walsenburg.

An armed patrol sent to the border line of Pueblo county returned before dawn without sighting any of the strikers' automobiles.

Unverified reports stated that the miners came as far as a school house three miles from here and returned to Walsenburg in small groups after a consultation.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 8.—A feeling of unrest hung over Colorado coal fields today as the I. W. W. strike for the Jacksonville wage agreement and other industrial adjustments entered its third week.

While 50 armed guards were on duty in Pueblo to prevent a jail delivery of I. W. W. leaders imprisoned there, deputy sheriffs and national guard officers were under orders to go to the northern fields today.

Following a meeting of more than 1,000 strikers at Lafayette last night it was predicted that picketing would be renewed at the Columbine mine. Governor Adams has sent Col. Paul P. Newton, adjutant general of the national guard, and several other officers as observers there.

Sheriff Ben Robinson of Weld county deputized 20 men to do guard duty at the Columbine.

Working miners at the Columbine mine drafted a request to Governor Adams to give them protection as they desired to work but feared to operate the mine.

A mass meeting also was held at Walsenburg. Mysterious signal fires and rockets flaming from nearby hills caused a machine gun guard to be placed at the court house.

Although operators in southern fields reported gains in the number of miners at work, Governor Adams dispatched four additional members of the state law enforcement bureau there.

Charges were to be filed today against the I. W. W. leaders arrested in the southern fields. District Attorney Joseph W. Hawley announced.

DESPONDENT OVER ILL HEALTH AND COMMITS SUICIDE

Owatonna, Minn., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Despondency over ill health is said to have caused the suicide of William Warner, 46, at Bixby, near here.

His body was found hanging by a rope in an elevator he operated, following a search by relatives after he failed to return home late Monday.

Warner was well known here as a grain buyer and elevator operator.

EXPLOSION AT HAMMOND, IND., LEVELS THEATER

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—The State theater here was virtually destroyed early today by an explosion which broke windows for several blocks around and shook nearby residents from their beds.

Damage was estimated by police at $2,000,000.

The theater was bombed, police said. So far as was known, only a porter was in the building when the blast occurred. He was not injured.

LONG FAILS TO IDENTIFY H. R. LAMB

DETECTIVE HAD NAMED HIM AS ALLEGED JURY TAMPERER

GRAND JURY CONTINUES INVESTIGATION OF CHARGES MADE

By HERBERT LITTLE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 8.—William V. Long, Burns detective, who swore to alleged government tampering with a Fall-Sinclair juror, failed today to identify H. R. Lamb, justice department employee, whom he had named as the alleged tamperer.

Confronted with Lamb in the office of Assistant U. S. District Attorney Neil Burkinshaw, Long said he had never seen Lamb before. Later he reviewed a group of newspapermen and said none was the justice department agent whom he had previously said talked with Juror Norman Glascock at Potomac flying field Oct. 22, owner of the car with the license tag P-1738 which Long shadowed said he had never been near the flying field and Glascock also denied having been there.

The grand jury investigation into charges that Harry F. Sinclair and others conspired to tamper with the Fall-Sinclair oil jury was interrupted by another case today but the jury planned to hear this afternoon Sheldon Clark, Sinclair official, subpoenaed as an alleged "contact man" in the espionage of Fall-Sinclair jurors.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Justice Frederick L. Siddons today signed subpoenas commanding H. M. Blackmer and James E. O'Neill to appear here January 16 for the re-trial of the indictment charging Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall with conspiracy to defraud the government in the Teapot Dome lease.

Blackmer and O'Neill, wealthy oil men, have been in Europe for the last few years. Attempts in two previous trials to subpoena them and force their return, have been unsuccessful.

Blackmer and O'Neill are wanted by the government to tell what connection Sinclair had with the Continental Trading Company, the liberty bond profits of which, to the amount of $230,590, were found in the possession of Fall, then secretary of Interior, in 1922, shortly after he leased Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

FALL PASSES CRISIS IN HIS LUNG ILLNESS

Washington, Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall successfully passed last night the crisis in a lung illness that had kept him in bed at the Mayflower hotel since last Thursday.

The 65-year-old defendant in the Teapot Dome conspiracy case was reported still asleep late this forenoon and his condition pointed to a normal recovery enabling him to leave for his New Mexico ranch soon, attendants said.

Congestion in Fall's right lung appeared to be clearing, according to his physician. He had a subnormal temperature late yesterday, but just before midnight rallied to take nourishment which he followed with deep sleep.

LIST OF DEAD IDENTIFIED NOW TOTALLING 85

SNOWSTORMS WHICH YESTERDAY ADDED TO SUFFERING HAVE ENDED

LOW TEMPERATURE MAKES THE SITUATION ACUTE AT SOME POINTS

By HENRY MINOTT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Boston, Nov. 8.—With all danger definitely past, relief and rehabilitation work progressed rapidly today in flood-stricken New England.

"Thousands of homeless, mostly in Vermont, were quartered in the churches, halls and other emergency barracks under the care of soldiers, the Red Cross and volunteers.

The list of identified victims had been increased to 85. Of the dead, 63 were Vermonters.

Snowstorms, which yesterday added to suffering, had ended, and although low temperatures made the situation acute at some points, general conditions were reported greatly improved.

"Steps had been taken to assure the hardest-hit communities a regular supply of food and medical necessities.

Vast quantities of clothing and blankets were being distributed among the homeless.

Officials directing relief work reported there appeared no danger of pestilence following New England's most disastrous flood.

Reports from the Winoskie valley region of Vermont said many persons were unaccounted for. Military authorities believed a complete list of the dead never would be obtained.

The same authorities declared a comprehensive survey of the districts affected seemed to confirm their earlier estimate that property loss in the six states would exceed $100,000,000.

While shelter had been provided for the homeless, a real emergency was said to exist in the vicinity of the towns of Bolton, Waterbury and Duxbury, Vt., where the flood waters caused indescribable havoc.

There, in isolated, water-soaked farmhouses, whole families were living without heat. They had only wet clothing and no medicine.

New attempts to carry food, clothing and medical supplies to these sufferers will be made today, but relief workers believed the chances of reaching the marooned farms were slim while so much of the territory remained under water.

Telephone and telegraph service still was being operated on an emergency basis in the afflicted areas today. Hundreds of workmen were engaged in patching crippled lines.

Railroad service was being slowly returned to normal, but it was apparent that lines near the flood center of Vermont would long remain disrupted. Miles and miles of tracks lay twisted and broken and scores of bridges and underpasses had been destroyed.

With railroad trains stalled at many points, airplanes carried supplies to isolated communities. Many flights were balked by snowstorms yesterday, and motor trucks which were next resorted to were mired in the slime-covered roads in many cases.

In all New England states excepting Connecticut, the flood had receded today. Even in that state little fear was felt. The Connecticut river was receding after having destroyed approximately $2,500,000 worth of property and threatened millions more.

CANOE JAMS INTO STREET CAR

St. Paul, Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—A street car motorman today objected vociferously when part of a canoe crashed into the cab while riding along snow-covered streets.

An automobile, with a canoe attached to the top, skidded on the slippery street. Jack Weiner, driver of the machine, was returning from a hunting trip.

C. T. Eweber, the motorman, narrowly escaped being struck by the canoe.

Officials asserted Manolescu had implicated several other people in the plot, declaring they were communicating with Carol in code messages.

Dispatches said Roumanian authorities had freed General Theodoru, arrested as a Carolist sympathizer.

London, Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—An Exchange Telegraph Vienna dispatch reports from Bucharest that Former Under-Secretary of State Manolescu has been charged with attempting to overthrow the King—the penalty for which is 20 years' imprisonment.

The dispatch reports also that Mme. Manolescu has been arrested, charged with being her husband's accomplice.

MRS. BERYL C. WARD GRANTED DIVORCE

Reno, Nev., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Beryl Curtis Ward, wife of Walter S. Ward, son of the president of the Ward Baking company, has been granted a decree of divorce on grounds of desertion, failure to provide and infidelity. Mrs. Ward was awarded custody of two minor children.

Ward was indicted in 1922 for the murder of Clarence Peters, a sailor, whose body was found in Westchester county, N. Y. He was acquitted later to be sued for damages by the parents of the slain sailor. The case never came to trial. Ward disappeared soon after it was filed, and later was found in Cuba.

ARMED GUARDS ON DUTY IN CASE OF ATTACK

DEPUTIES ARMED WITH SHOT-GUNS, MACHINE GUNS, RIFLES, ETC.

TEAR BOMBS AND FIRE HOSE ALSO UTILIZED FOR DEFENSE

Pueblo, Colo., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Rumor that striking miners in southern Colorado coal fields planned to free 10 I. W. W. leaders from the Pueblo jail caused a force of 50 armed guards to remain on duty early today in case of a surprise attack.

When 24 automobile loads of strikers left Walsenburg early this morning, a report spread that they were to meet about 100 more car loads of miners at Sand Canon and invade Pueblo to free their leaders.

Sheriff H. G. Tennis immediately threw a guard of 100 deputies around the jail. They were armed with shot guns, machine guns, rifles, tear bombs, fire hose and side arms.

Upon failure of the caravan of strikers to arrive after several hours, about half of the guards were sent home. The others remained on guard in case of a sudden attack.

Among the prisoners in the Pueblo jail are Roger Franzoso, Kristen Svanum, and A. S. Embree, strike leaders brought here secretly from Walsenburg.

An armed patrol sent to the border line of Pueblo county returned before dawn without sighting any of the strikers' automobiles.

Unverified reports stated that the miners came as far as a school house three miles from here and returned to Walsenburg in small groups after a consultation.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 8.—A feeling of unrest hung over Colorado coal fields today as the I. W. W. strike for the Jacksonville wage agreement and other industrial adjustments entered its third week.

While 50 armed guards were on duty in Pueblo to prevent a jail delivery of I. W. W. leaders imprisoned there, deputy sheriffs and national guard officers were under orders to go to the northern fields today.

Following a meeting of more than 1,000 strikers at Lafayette last night it was predicted that picketing would be renewed at the Columbine mine. Governor Adams has sent Col. Paul P. Newton, adjutant general of the national guard, and several other officers as observers there.

Sheriff Ben Robinson of Weld county deputized 20 men to do guard duty at the Columbine.

Working miners at the Columbine mine drafted a request to Governor Adams to give them protection as they desired to work but feared to operate the mine.

A mass meeting also was held at Walsenburg. Mysterious signal fires and rockets flaming from nearby hills caused a machine gun guard to be placed at the court house.

Although operators in southern fields reported gains in the number of miners at work, Governor Adams dispatched four additional members of the state law enforcement bureau there.

Charges were to be filed today against the I. W. W. leaders arrested in the southern fields. District Attorney Joseph W. Hawley announced.

DESPONDENT OVER ILL HEALTH AND COMMITS SUICIDE

Owatonna, Minn., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Despondency over ill health is said to have caused the suicide of William Warner, 46, at Bixby, near here. His body was found hanging by a rope in an elevator he operated, following a search by relatives after he failed to return home late Monday.

EXPLOSION AT HAMMOND, IND., LEVELS THEATER

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—The State theater here was virtually destroyed early today by an explosion which broke windows for several blocks around and shook nearby residents from their beds.

Damage was estimated by police at $2,000,000.

The theater was bombed, police said. So far as was known, only a porter was in the building when the blast occurred. He was not injured.

LONG FAILS TO IDENTIFY H. R. LAMB

DETECTIVE HAD NAMED HIM AS ALLEGED JURY TAMPERER

GRAND JURY CONTINUES INVESTIGATION OF CHARGES MADE

By HERBERT LITTLE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Nov. 8.—William V. Long, Burns detective, who swore to alleged government tampering with a Fall-Sinclair juror, failed today to identify H. R. Lamb, justice department employee, whom he had named as the alleged tamperer.

Confronted with Lamb in the office of Assistant U. S. District Attorney Neil Burkinshaw, Long said he had never seen Lamb before. Later he reviewed a group of newspapermen and said none was the justice department agent whom he had previously said talked with Juror Norman Glascock at Potomac flying field Oct. 22, owner of the car with the license tag P-1738 which Long shadowed said he had never been near the flying field and Glascock also denied having been there.

The grand jury investigation into charges that Harry F. Sinclair and others conspired to tamper with the Fall-Sinclair oil jury was interrupted by another case today but the jury planned to hear this afternoon Sheldon Clark, Sinclair official, subpoenaed as an alleged "contact man" in the espionage of Fall-Sinclair jurors.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Justice Frederick L. Siddons today signed subpoenas commanding H. M. Blackmer and James E. O'Neil to appear here January 16 for the re-trial of the indictment charging Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall with conspiracy to defraud the government in the Teapot Dome lease.

Blackmer and O'Neil, wealthy oil men, have been in Europe for the last few years. Attempts in two previous trials to subpoena them and force their return, have been unsuccessful.

Blackmer and O'Neil are wanted by the government to tell what connection Sinclair had with the Continental Trading Company, the liberty bond profits of which, to the amount of $230,500, were found in the possession of Fall, then secretary of interior, in 1922, shortly after he leased Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

FALL PASSES CRISIS IN HIS LUNG ILLNESS

Washington, Nov. 8.—(U.P.)—Former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall successfully passed last night the crisis in a lung illness that had kept him in bed at the Mayflower hotel since last Thursday.

The 65-year-old defendant in the Teapot Dome conspiracy case was reported still asleep late this forenoon and his condition pointed to a normal recovery enabling him to leave for his New Mexico ranch soon, attendants said.

Congestion in Fall's right lung appeared to be clearing, according to his physician. He had a subnormal temperature late yesterday, but just before midnight rallied to take nourishment which he followed with deep sleep.

LIST OF DEAD IDENTIFIED NOW TOTALLING 85

SNOWSTORMS WHICH YESTERDAY ADDED TO SUFFERING HAVE ENDED

LOW TEMPERATURE MAKES THE SITUATION ACUTE AT SOME POINTS

By HENRY MINOTT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Boston, Nov. 8.—With all danger definitely past, relief and rehabilitation work progressed rapidly today in flood-stricken New England.

"Thousands of homeless, mostly in Vermont, were quartered in the churches, halls and other emergency barracks under the care of soldiers, the Red Cross and volunteers.

The list of identified victims had been increased to 85. Of the dead, 63 were Vermonters.

Snowstorms, which yesterday added to suffering, had ended, and although low temperatures made the situation acute at some points, general conditions were reported greatly improved.

"Steps had been taken to assure the hardest-hit communities a regular supply of food and medical necessities.

Vast quantities of clothing and blankets were being distributed among the homeless.

Officials directing relief work reported there appeared no danger of pestilence following New England's most disastrous flood.

Reports from the Winooskie valley region of Vermont said many persons were unaccounted for. Military authorities believed a complete list of the dead never would be obtained.

The same authorities declared a comprehensive survey of the districts affected seemed to confirm their earlier estimate that property loss in the six states would exceed $100,000,000.

While shelter had been provided for the homeless, a real emergency was said to exist in the vicinity of the towns of Bolton, Waterbury and Duxbury, Vt., where the flood waters caused indescribable havoc.

There, in isolated, water-soaked farmhouses, whole families were living without heat. They had only wet clothing and no medicine.

New attempts to carry food, clothing and medical supplies to these sufferers will be made today, but relief workers believed the chances of reaching the marooned farms were slim while so much of the territory remained under water.

Telephone and telegraph service still was being operated on an emergency basis in the afflicted areas today. Hundreds of workmen were engaged in patching crippled lines.

Railroad service was being slowly returned to normal, but it was apparent that lines near the flood center of Vermont would long remain disrupted. Miles and miles of tracks lay twisted and broken and scores of bridges and underpasses had been destroyed.

With railroad trains stalled at many points, airplanes carried supplies to isolated communities. Many flights were balked by snowstorms yesterday, and motor trucks which were next resorted to were mired in the slime-covered roads in many cases.

In all New England states excepting Connecticut, the flood had receded today. Even in that state little fear was felt. The Connecticut river was receding after having destroyed approximately $2,500,000 worth of property and threatened millions more.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

November 8, 1902

George Keen, S. R. Adair and the Britton Brothers left this afternoon for the north to get ready for the opening of the deer season.

Last night Walter Wieland was given a genuine surprise at his home, the event being his sixteenth birthday anniversary. The members of the high school football team were invited to dine, and besides reminding Walter by their presence and happy jovial manners of the anniversary which cannot soon be forgotten, they left a memento in the shape of a pair of elegant gold cuff buttons. It was a happy gathering.

The cement walk around the First M. E. church has been completed and it is a very much appreciated improvement by the residents of the north side.

East Brainerd will soon have a new wood yard. L. A. Canfield is the promoter and he will soon open a yard on Fourth Avenue between Forsythe and Pine streets. He will deal in cord wood, stove wood and tamarac posts and poles.

Gustaf Brandt, brother of Mrs. Edstrom, arrived from Sweden.

Agent Mosier will move from the old freight house to the new one tomorrow or Sunday.

Mrs. Josephine Lovelace has opened what has been known as the Bileau house at the mill, she being the owner of the place.

SENATOR MARCONI CONFINED TO BED

London, Nov. 8.—(UP)—Senator Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of radio, was confined to bed today with a heavy cold, the severity of which led his friends for a time to fear might result in serious illness.

Since he returned recently from a visit to the United States, Marconi had shown signs of fatigue. Sunday night a doctor was summoned.

The noted inventor showed progress yesterday, and this morning his secretary, P. C. O. Magrini, told the United Press:

"The senator had a strenuous time on his recent American trip, and the strain has told on him."

INTERNATIONAL HOBO CONVENTION MEETS IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Nov. 8.—(UP)—From the highways of the country "not the very rich, nor the very poor," were arriving here today for the international hobo convention.

The "millionaire hobo," James Eads How, is present to conduct the sessions at the Minneapolis Labor Temple today.

"Can he lead us? And how!" one of the local associates exclaimed when some of the delegates gathered for a pre-convention session Monday night. The occasion for the outburst of delight was the arrival of James Eads How at the session with an armful of "sinkers."

"Just a moment, brothers," the leader admonished as his fellow club-mates started to demonstrate their capabilities.

President How left the temple and returned a few minutes later with a pot of coffee which was "urged upon me by a hot dog man." The meeting then started in earnest.

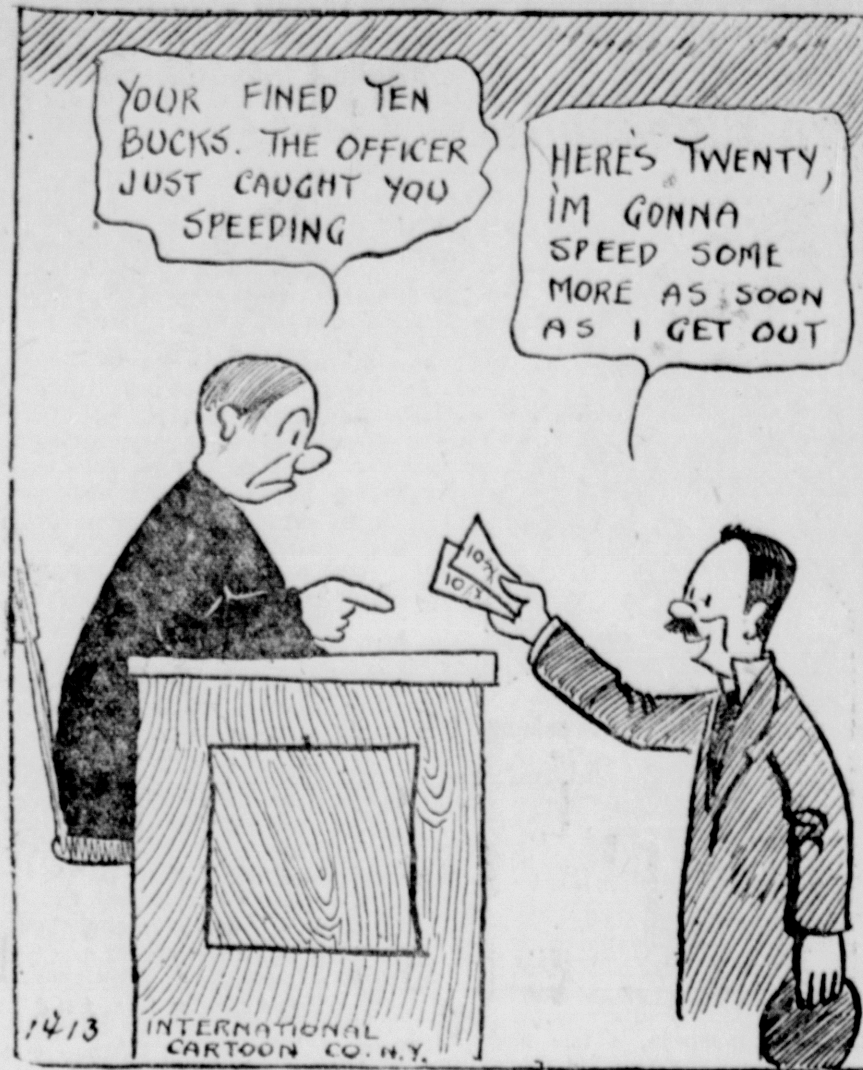

There are several constructive programs of "justice for the hobo" to be discussed by the delegates, among them jury trials for "knights of the road" picked up for vagrancy.

"Judges have usually decided that a man has a right to be upon the street whether he has money or not and no jury will convict a man for this," Dr. How declared.

"Last year, however, 100,000 of our organization were arrested and sentenced without just cause," he said.

Dr. How is recognized as a millionaire doctor. He is a graduate of Harvard and recognized philanthropist.

ROAD HOGS AT NIGHT

If the State Highway Department is really going to crusade against glaring headlights, it has its work cut out for it, says the Minneapolis Journal in a recent editorial. Not only must it compel correction of focus and intensity on many cars, that now have faulty headlights which are undimmed, but it must also compel drivers whose bright lights are dimmable to dim them when they meet other cars. And this is something that is not being done, to any marked extent.

A Minneapolis man drove from Brainerd to Minneapolis the other night—a distance of 127 miles. Just out of Brainerd he met a car with dazzling headlights—a big car, on which there must have been a dimming device. But the lights were not dimmed. That set the driver and his companion to betting on the dimmers and the non-dimmers—the gentlemen and the road hogs. They bet on every car as it approached, the driver taking the road hog end of the bet continuously. He won five out of every six bets.

Some of these dazzling lights, of course, could not be dimmed. They were out of focus. But more than half of the cars were good-sized, modern cars, on which, it is fair to assume, the lights might have been dimmed. Giving the other drivers all the best of it, there must have been three in every six cars on which the lights might have been dimmed, but were not.

Road courtesy—let alone road safety—cries out for observance at night in Minnesota. Perhaps the State Highway Department can mend matters. But it has a long job on its hands.

THE REWARD OF THIEF

IN a short editorial the St. Cloud Daily Times speaks of the reward of thrift and states that many millions of dollars will be distributed in the United States from Christmas savings funds of hundreds of banks to several million thrift depositors within the next few weeks. The savings plan in this country never before reached such a volume in amount and number of depositors.

While it is true much of the money that will be received from savings funds will be spent for purchases of various kinds, many of the more thrifty depositors will allow their savings to remain in the banks and continue to bear interest. They are looking forward to larger things than holiday purchases.

Persons who have not tried the plan of making weekly deposits in a Christmas savings fund should enroll themselves with some bank handling such funds for 1928. There should be satisfaction in making payments week by week, but the thrill will come when a substantial check is received from the bank in December 1928.

Not a dollar of the money which the people of the United States have saved, should be permitted to get into the hands of persons who will not give one hundred cents' value for a dollar. This may be possible if persons show as much judgment in spending as they have in saving.

WHY NOT DO IT?

NINETY per cent of 1,000 business leaders of this country have approved a new calendar. The year would consist of thirteen four-week months, with an extra day left over annually and two extra days in leap year. Every weekday would fall on the same date.

And why not? We muddle along with an antiquated calendar when there are good reasons for systematizing things in a convenient manner. The reason we do nothing about it is the reason that governs us in most other matters of suggested improvement. We just simply hate initial inconvenience. LAKE PROPERTY MOVING

HARDLY has autumn waned and a touch of winter breathed on the land, when we note an activity in the lake property market. We pick at random the evidence of a few days in November when the register of deeds' office disclosed these transfers.

On November 4 sales of lots by Captain William H. Fawcett in his First Subdivision to Breezy Point; two transfers by the Bronson-Peterson Incorporated of lots at Brighton Point on Big Bay Lake; a transfer by Charles M. Drew of lots in "Among the Pines" at Nisswa.

This presages continued interest in our Brainerd Lake Region and gives every indication too of the building of lake cottages next spring. People, attracted to our lake country, like it so well that they enlarge short visits to long stays and then become regular and continuous residents during the season. We welcome them all to this hospitable country.

It is one thing to criticize and another to shape it into a constructive program. Admiral Magruder was free to press charges against the alleged inefficiency and extravagance of the navy department. Now he has lost his regular job and has been asked to outline a constructive plan to do away with the things he inveighed against.

THERE are always two classes of people, the idealists and the practical. One sees beyond the clouds and the other keeps his feet on the earth. One urges to greater deeds beyond the horizon, takes high ground and sees more. The other sticks to the valley of experience and takes no chances of fog on the mountain. It takes both, however, to make a world.

ON an unofficial test flight Lieutenant Williams flew 322.6 miles an hour. The Lord only knows how fast he will go when he flies officially. At that rate of speed the landscape below must look kind of blurry and telephone poles as close as fence pickets.

A JUROR who talks too much when on a case soon gets in trouble. Witness the lone juror in the oil conspiracy case who talked of the case while off duty to a street car conductor, according to the story published in the papers.

THE time to boost is when the boosting is good. That's why, if you have any flowers to give to people, do so before they are dead.

PROBABLY no other country ever had a navy so deficient in peace time and so efficient in war as ours, says the Columbus Dispatch.

Boldness should not be mistaken for courage and real bravery. The bold man is often a physical bully who fights because he is insensible to pain and mentally stupid, where courage and bravery will go into battle, knowing full well the dangers and pitfalls ahead.

The capital I, which leans forward with large top, heavy, fancy under-scoring to the signature, very large brutal I dots in an undefined writing, coupled with very large x or g loops in thick writing are indicative of a nature who will be proud and talkative of his battles and the situations where he has bullied some one into submission.

Rainbow Tubes Create New Era in Modern Illumination

UPPER ILLUSTRATION—Col. Charles Lindbergh, a few hours before he left on his historic transatlantic trip, congratulated Graduate, Raymond R. Machlett, inventor of Rainbow Light. ILLUSTRATION—The fog piercing light in hairpin shaped lamp in use at Government Flying fields.

FOR several years the economic progress in the development of illumination by means of rare gases employed in electrically charged tubes has been virtually at a standstill until the litigation over patents was settled recently. The victory in the courts of the Rainbow Luminous Products, Inc., has set this factor in the lighting industry on a firm foundation so that rapid strides are being looked for in the commercial and scientific worlds.

The result of this protracted litigation is the unleashing of a force of scientific lighting data and experimental information which promises to revolutionize this particular industry.

The Rainbow Light invention of Raymond R. Machlett, is effective in all colors and emits the only rays known to science that pierce fog. The light itself is "cold," and produces no heat. A 10,000 candle power Rainbow Product is practically as cool hours after it has been in operation as it was when first turned on and is not affected by changes in temperature or atmospheric conditions.

Tests have shown that the Rainbow Light operates upward of 10,000 hours and a maximum current required is only a fraction of that used by the incandescent bulb which has been replaced after only a few hundred hours. The cost of maintenance obviously is much less than the old way.

The principal application of the Rainbow light tubes up to the last few months has been for advertising purposes. The tubes which can be bent into the shapes of lettering have been used extensively from coast to coast.

The Rainbow light, in addition to having been tested and found satisfactory at airports by Government officials, was recently installed on the Leviathan to be tested at sea for its fog penetrating proclivities. If successful in this particular test, it will prove to be an invaluable asset to mariners whose greatest hazard is fog. The Rainbow super-beacon has been installed and now in operation, at Mitchell, Curtis and Hadley Field.

The young inventor—he is twenty-six—is the son of the late Robert H. Machlett, who perfected the X-Ray tubes.

Machlett's grandfather also was an inventor.

ROAD HOGS AT NIGHT

If the State Highway Department is really going to crusade against glaring headlights, it has its work cut out for it, says the Minneapolis Journal in a recent editorial. Not only must it compel correction of focus and intensity on many cars, that now have faulty headlights which are undimable, but it must also compel drivers whose bright lights are dimmable to dim them when they meet other cars. And this is something that is not being done, to any marked extent.

A Minneapolis man drove from Brainerd to Minneapolis the other night—a distance of 127 miles. Just out of Brainerd he met a car with dazzling headlights—a big car, on which there must have been a dimming device. But the lights were not dimmed. That set the driver and his companion to betting on the dimmers and the non-dimmers—the gentlemen and the road hogs. They bet on every car as it approached, the driver taking the road hog end of the bet continuously. "He won five out of every six bets."

Some of these dazzling lights, of course, could not be dimmed. They were out of focus. But more than half of the cars were good-sized, modern cars, on which, it is fair to assume, the lights might have been dimmed. Giving the other drivers all the best of it, there must have been three in every six cars on which the lights might have been dimmed, but were not.

Road courtesy—let alone road safety—cries out for observance at night in Minnesota. Perhaps the State Highway Department can mend matters. But it has a long job on its hands.

THE REWARD OF THIEFT

IN a short editorial the St. Cloud Daily Times speaks of the reward of theft and states that many millions of dollars will be distributed in the United States from Christmas savings funds of hundreds of banks to several million thrift depositors within the next few weeks. The savings plan in this country never before reached such a volume in amount and number of depositors.

While it is true much of the money that will be received from savings funds will be spent for purchases of various kinds, many of the more thrifty depositors will allow their savings to remain in the banks and continue to bear interest. They are looking forward to larger things than holiday purchases.

Persons who have not tried the plan of making weekly deposits in a Christmas savings fund should enroll themselves with some bank handling such funds for 1928. There should be satisfaction in making payments week by week, but the thrill will come when a substantial check is received from the bank in December 1928.

Not a dollar of the money which the people of the United States have saved, should be permitted to get into the hands of persons who will not give one hundred cents' value for a dollar. This may be possible if persons show as much judgment in spending as they have in saving.

WHY NOT DO IT?

NINETY per cent of 1,000 business leaders of this country have approved a new calendar. The year would consist of thirteen four-week months, with an extra day left over annually and two extra days in leap year. Every weekday would fall on the same date.

And why not? We muddle along with an antiquated calendar when there are good reasons for systematizing things in a convenient manner. The reason we do nothing about it is the reason that governs us in most other matters of suggested improvement. We just simply hate initial inconvenience. We would rather let well enough alone than go through the necessary motions of adjusting ourselves to something better. And that's why human progress is so slow.—Grove Patterson in Duluth Herald.

YALE AND PRINCETON IN BATTLE ROYAL AT NEW HAVEN

ONE OF FINEST
GRIDIRON TUSSELS
NOW EXPECTED

TWO OF GREATEST FORWARD
LINES DEVELOPED IN EAST
TO CLASH

SUPREMACY OF THAT LINE DE-TERMINING FACTOR IN THE VICTORY

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 8. — Football criticism and public appreciation of the game, should be revised in the right direction when the eleventh of Yale and Princeton meet at New Haven in what promises to be one of the finest gridiron tussles of their history, or anyone's else.

Two of the greatest forward lines developed in the east in recent years will come together in desperate, headlong battle.

For once, the play of linesmen will absorb the attention of most of the spectators who look down from the crowded, sweeping slopes of blustery Yale bowl.

Bruce Caldwell may flit hither and yon across the white chalk-lines and flip his passes here and there; Eddie Wittmer may twist his way for long gains or boot the ball far and high against what we hope will be a clear blue sky; but until the supremacy of the forward line is established, no Yale or Princeton man or critical observer will be satisfied.

Criticism of a football team frequently is unfair, because it is so difficult to judge from sideline or press-box the merits of line play. Public appreciation of the gridiron sport is confined, in a large measure, to the dash of the backs, the kicks and passes, the fumbles and other spectacular features of the game.

In Yale Bowl, on Saturday, will come the clash of two great teams of the year, made great by the play of their linesmen. Because this is so, it will be possible to concentrate upon the struggle and comparative strength of those young men of the forward line whose toil so often has gone unrewarded and unappreciated by onlookers.

Can Captain Moeser and his tackle Barfield, box the rangy, mighty Quarrier as they did the linesmen of Ohio State last week? How will the powerful Charlesworth, greatest of eastern centers thus far seen in action, fare in sizing up and stopping

MIKE ROZGALL DROPS SCHLAIF-

ROUND

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 8. — (UP) —

The swan song has been sounded for another boxer who once had championship aspirations that barely missed fulfillment.

In the same ring where he scored most of his victories in years gone by, Morrie Schlaifer, Omaha's "fighting fool," probably fought his last battle last night. The attempted comeback of the former championship contender was knocked blotto by Mike Rozgall who dropped Schlaifer to the count in the third round.

Rozgall, who used to fight in the preliminaries when Morrie was headlining the card against such men as Dave Shade, Frankie Schoell and Billy Wells, clearly outclassed Schlaifer.

Twice Schlaifer was knocked down. Blood seeped from his eyes and nose. His seconds tossed in the towel soon after the opening of the third round. It was a helpless task.

Following the fight, Morrie announced he was "thorough."

In his ten years in the ring—he is now 27—Morrie fought more than 200 battles. He had slugged his way to the top of the division and his descent began when Mickey Walker, then welterweight champion, performed what Omaha fans believed impossible—knocked Schlaifer out, after a terrific battering by Schlaifer.

ST. LOUIS CARDS

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 8. — (UP) — Bill McKechnie, new manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, has begun reorganization of the lineup. He was assistant manager this year.

Jimmy Ring and Flint Rhem, pitchers, and Lester Bell, third baseman, are "tradeable material," he announced. Allan Sothorn, former moistball pitcher, will be retained as head coach of the club.

McKechnie signed a contract yesterday to manage the Cards, succeeding Bob O'Farrell, catcher-manager of 1927, who was given a $5,000 salary increase and retained as first string backstop.

Minneapolis, Nov. 8. — (UP) — A series of robberies here today netted losses totalling nearly $1,700. The largest theft was reported at the Kings-X cafe where $1,370 worth of loot was obtained.

CONVICTED STRANGLER
TO HANG JAN. 13

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 8. — (UP) — Relatives of Earle Nelson, convicted "strangler," today are returning to their homes in California after a futile effort to aid in his defense.

Mrs. Mary Fuller, wife of Nelson who married under the name of Evan Fuller, and Mrs. Lillian Fabian, an aunt, came to Winnipeg from Palo Alto, Calif., to testify in Nelson's behalf.

Nelson was sentenced last Saturday to hang on Friday, the 13th of January, for the murder of Mrs. Emily Patterson. He was suspected as perpetrator of similar "strange crimes" in the United States.

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The other day, I saw a photograph of Herb Pennock, in overalls, milking a cow.

Somehow, I suspect that the photograph was no truer to life than those depicting Cal Coolidge in chaps and a ten-gallon hat.

For one thing, Herb owns the farm upon which the picture was taken, and undoubtedly has a hired man around for just such chores.

But what gave me the real tip-off was this: the famous Yankee southpaw was milking that cow RIGHT-HANDED!

Pennock looked mighty comfortable and happy, down on the farm, and I fell to wondering how many more seasons will find him baseball's greatest left-handed pitcher.

I won't tell you how old he is, but I will remind you that Herb pitched part of a world series game for the Athletics against the Boston Braves in 1914. He wasn't in that game long enough to win or lose it—which was fortunate for him, since the Braves were on the warpath in that memorable series.

Pennock has a record of five victories and no defeats in world series contests. In this respect, he is tied with old Jack Coombs, former star of the Mackmen and now a baseball coach at Princeton University.

Coombs won three games for the Athletics over the Chicago Cubs in 1910, beat the Giants in one game the following year and pitched the Brooklyn Dodgers to a single victory over the Boston Sox in the series of 1916.

Pennock has taken part in eight world series games, winning five, losing none and playing a relief role in three.

Pitching for the Yankees, Herb beat the Giants twice in 1923 in the last series in which both New York teams took part. Three years later, he twice defeated the St. Louis Cardinals.

Pennock's fifth world series victory was achieved against the Pittsburgh Pirates in Yankee Stadium a month ago. No one who saw it will ever forget the amazing performance of the slim, frail southpaw, who turned back the National League champions inning after inning without a man reaching first.

For seven innings, Herb shut the Pirates out, one-two-three. Then, when the game was won, he eased up a bit, and allowed three hits and a run. It was one of the best pitched world series games on record, and was all the more remarkable because Pennock had been laid low by a batted ball during Yankee practice in Pittsburgh three days earlier.

There is one more world series pitching record to which Pennock may aspire, and the chances are that he will equal or better it before he finally quits baseball and settles down on the farm.

Chief Bender of the Athletics, won six world series games. The Indian shut out the Giants in the only game the Mackmen won in 1905. Bender won a game in 1910 from the Cubs, two in 1911 from the Giants again, and again in 1913 he twice defeated McGraw's National League champions.

But the Chief was beaten in three of his series starts, twice by the Giants and once by the Cubs, so if Herb adds another victory to his string next year he will be without a peer as a world's championship pitcher.

How do I know he will be in the series next year? Isn't he a member of the New York Yankees?

COMFORT and lots of it. I'm talking about Prince Albert, Gentlemen, the National Joy Smoke. Why, there's friendliness in the very aroma of P.A., as you open the tidy red tin. Some fragrance it is, too.

The first pull on a pipe packed with P.A. tells you the taste is equally friendly. Cool and long-burning. Sweet as grape-clusters, hanging on the vine. Mild as arctic sunshine, yet with plenty of good, rich tobacco-body to let you know you're smoking. So mild, in fact, that you can load-up and light-up from breakfast to bedtime.

Now, I'm not one to mix in on other people's affairs. But this pipe-thing is different, somehow. I can't resist tipping you off to what I consider the greatest pipe-tobacco in the world. Get some P.A. now and get some of this comfort I've been telling you about.

YALE AND PRINCETON IN BATTLE ROYAL AT NEW HAVEN

ONE OF FINEST GRIDIRON TUSSELS NOW EXPECTED

TWO OF GREATEST FORWARD LINES DEVELOPED IN EAST TO CLASH

SUPREMACY OF THAT LINE DETERMINING FACTOR IN THE VICTORY

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 8.—Football criticism and public appreciation of the game, should be revised in the right direction when the eleven of Yale and Princeton meet at New Haven in what promises to be one of the finest gridiron tussles of their history, or anyone's else.

Two of the greatest forward lines developed in the east in recent years will come together in desperate, headlong battle.

For once, the play of linesmen will absorb the attention of most of the spectators who look down from the crowded, sweeping slopes of blustery Yale bowl.

Bruce Caldwell may flit hither and yon across the white chalk-lines and flip his passes here and there; Eddie Wittmer may twist his way for long gains or boot the ball far and high against what we hope will be a clear blue sky; but until the supremacy of the forward line is established, no Yale or Princeton man or critical observer will be satisfied.

Criticism of a football team frequently is unfair, because it is so difficult to judge from sideline or press-box the merits of line play. Public appreciation of the gridiron sport is confined, in a large measure, to the dash of the backs, the kicks and passes, the fumbles and other spectacular features of the game.

In Yale Bowl, on Saturday, will come the clash of two great teams of the year, made great by the play of their linesmen. Because this is so, it will be possible to concentrate upon the struggle and comparative strength of those young men of the forward line whose toil so often has gone unappreciated and unappreciated by onlookers.

Can Captain Mooser and his tackle Barfield, box the rangy, mighty Quarrier as they did the linesmen of Ohio State last week? How will the powerful Charlesworth, greatest of eastern centers thus far seen in action, fare in sizing up and stopping that deceptive Princeton cross-buck? Who will give way when Captain Webster and Eddy of the Blue line try to open a hole between Whyte and French?

This is such stuff as football games really are made of. So often, in the public mind, the questionnaire is confined to:

"How many yards did McGinty gain?"

McGinty, folks, had to have a hole made for him, or the ends and defensive halfbacks had to be swept from his path around the wings, before he could start gaining.

One of Yale's line coaches said the other day that the men in charge at New Haven have decided that the best defense against a deceptive forward passing game is a fast line which can smash through and cut down the passer before the intended receiver is free.

Here against we have line play swaying the balance in as open a feature as the forward pass.

Bruce Caldwell's quick kick from close formation is an important factor in Yale's play. How will Baruch handle it, with Scott and Fishwick sitting down upon him? Or will the Tiger secondary defense take out those feet Yale ends in the manner taught so firmly by Bill Roper?

Princeton has a deceptive attack, and it will be largely up to Charlesworth to call the turn from his post a yard back to the Blue line. Under the system in vogue at New Haven, the defensive center sizes up the play and calls what are known as defensive signals, the other forwards charging at his direction.

Yale has Caldwell, the outstanding back of the two elevens, but the Tiger line from Captain Mooser to Stinson is going to New Haven with pronounced ideas upon the way to dispose of Bruce.

Both forward lines are so aggressive that they incur frequent penalties for offside and other offenses. Everything indicates a strenuous afternoon.

TWO QUESTIONED IN CONNECTION WITH CAR THEFT

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 8.—(UP)—Police early today arrested Alfred Mellin, 27, and Edward Ryan, 34, for questioning in connection with theft of an automobile and 12 blankets missing from a local store. They will be arraigned late today, on charges of grand larceny.

SCHLAIFER IN PROBABLY HIS LAST BATTLE

ATTEMPTED COMEBACK OF FORMER CHAMPIONSHIP CONTENDER FLATTENED

MIKE ROZGALL DROPS SCHLAIFER FOR COUNT IN THIRD ROUND

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 8.—(UP)—The swan song has been sounded for another boxer who once had championship aspirations that barely missed fulfillment.

In the same ring where he scored most of his victories in years gone by, Morrie Schlaifer, Omaha's "fighting fool," probably fought his last battle last night. The attempted comeback of the former championship contender was knocked blotto by Mike Rozgall who dropped Schlaifer to the count in the third round.

Rozgall, who used to fight in the preliminaries when Morrie was headlining the card against such men as Dave Shade, Frankie Schoell and Billy Wells, clearly outclassed Schlaifer.

Twice Schlaifer was knocked down. Blood seeped from his eyes and nose. His seconds tossed in the towel soon after the opening of the third round. It was a helpless task.

Following the fight, Morrie announced he was "thorough."

In his ten years in the ring—he is now 27—Morrie fought more than 200 battles. He had slugged his way to the top of the division and his descent began when Mickey Walker, then welterweight champion, performed what Omaha fans believed impossible—knocked Schlaifer out, after a terrific battering by Schlaifer.

BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL, NOVEMBER 8, 1927

NUMBER 8

THRE BRAINERD REPRESENTATIVES

ATTEND M. H. S. P. A. CONVENTION

CONVENTION WAS HELD AT MARSHALL HIGH, MINNEAPOLIS, FRIDAY, SATURDAY

The annual convention of the Minnesota High School Press Association was held at Marshall high school, Minneapolis, November 4 and 5. Many well known newspaper editors and University professors spoke about different phases of the question of publishing high school papers. Edward Markham also spoke and read several of his best known poems.

All day Friday, until 4:30 o'clock, was occupied by the several speakers. Each man pointed out mistakes made by practically every school publication and told the high school students who were there how they might improve their papers.

Friday evening there was a banquet and dance for all of the delegates. There were toasts by many present and singing and musical numbers by some of the delegates. The dance followed soon after the dinner.

Saturday morning there were speeches in the Marshall high auditorium and the convention ended with the election of officers.

Professor Gallup of University of Iowa, Professor Johnson of U. of M., P. J. Halstead, night editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, Dean Johnson of U. of M., and Mr. Swanson, managing editor of The Minneapolis Journal all gave hints as to enlarging and writing high school papers, annuals and magazines.

The Brainerd delegates, who were Milford Downie, Donald McNamara and Allen Johnson were housed at two of the "lawyers" on Fraternity Row, where they were cordially welcomed and entertained.

Friday afternoon and part of the morning Saturday were spent in discussion where the delegates threshed out their several problems. The discussion groups were the most helpful means of obtaining information wanted, according to our representatives.

Professor Gallup of the University of Iowa gave an extremely interesting talk on the "Sins of High School Journalists," on Saturday morning, in which he stated that the most important things that a school paper could print were features and editorials.

Tuesday morning the delegates gave a report on the convention in the assembly.

GIRLS' REGULAR SQUAD

PREPARES FOR SEASON

Due to the limited facilities, it has been necessary to select from the entire group out for basketball a smaller group which is known as the "squad."

Those girls selected give evidence of physical endurance as well as ability in handling of the ball.

The points upon which they were chosen were: speed, team work, skill in shooting and guarding, and attitude toward correction.

While it is probable that from the squad will be selected a team to represent the school in inter school contests, it does not mean that a non-squad member is not eligible to play should she show progress throughout the season. Positions are open up to the time of the game.

It is not the policy of Miss Reinertson to select a first and second team without openings for other girls.

Early this week the squad will meet to elect a captain and begin practice in fundamentals.

The following people were chosen on the squad: Almira Christanson, Roberta Crawford, Hilda Dybvick, Kathleen Early, Edna Fogelstrom, Myrtle Hegstad, Wilma Helgeson, Margaret Jackson, Bernice Jepson, Dorothy Kleven, Minnie Markwitz, Irene Molstad, Borghild Olson, Lorraine Palmer, Charlotte Peters, Myrtle Peterson, Edith Titus, and Anna Wahlstrom.

From time to time as vacancies occur additional tryouts will be given so that the membership of the squad will be kept at eighteen.

Senior Rings!

Well gang, our rings are here; and those that didn't go down to Burnett's and get them when they arrived yesterday can rush down there and get them now.

Knock-out looking, aren't they? All three styles.

It's easy to tell the Seniors from the rest of the students now.

Among B. H. S. Scientists

General Science

In the classes of both Miss Gipsen and Miss Sundberg, water supply and purification are being studied. Model force pumps and suction pumps have been shown to the classes; and the process of getting water through them is studied and explained. Some water faucets have also been brought to class, and their manner of working explained. The students found out also how water is heated in hot water boilers.

Biology

Food is being studied in Biology right now. The students are making sample menus, and will soon be testing the different kinds of foods. Physiology books are being referred to for references outside of the regular text books. There are dozens of specimens in Miss Laipple's Biology room, that are very interesting to examine. Among these are little frogs, salamanders, and turtles (all of them are alive) in a small aquarium.

Physics

The Physics classes are studying Boyle's Law, and proving it by experiment. The study of heat has just been completed, and now they are finding out about sound—the origin, and other things concerning it. The students give outside reports on topics that coincide with the class work.

Chemistry

Chlorine is the subject of the experiments in Chemistry just now. They have learned the preparation and properties of chlorine and hydrogen chloride. Very few accidents have happened, as everyone heeded the warnings of our very able instructor, Mr. Gridley. The students will soon start to write essays for the American Chemical Society. Rules and reference books have arrived from New York for this contest.

The different branches of Science are some of the interesting subjects in high school. There are a few experiments in General Science.

Hey! Hey!

One bright and shining afternoon as I was being homeward my attention was arrested by a noise quite foreign to me.

"Oh," I breathed to myself, "what do I hear but the busy wheels of industry, ceaselessly grinding out of dormant material some thing of beauty or usefulness that will place man on a level above all, yea, even as the mighty mount towers above the humble mole hill."

I proceeded with exclamations of jubilation and joy to the place from whence came the heretofore mentioned sound. As I approached I could hear loud crashes upon the floor intermingled with the more predominant noise of the machinery.

But alas, what disappointments this material world of ours holds in store for us, because as I entered the building what should I see but ardent and enthusiastic people skating merrily around a rink, some of them occasionally, crashing on the floor.

The Hamline Oracle: Hamline "U" has a new organization, authorized by the Student Senate. This is a roster club which will follow the teams to all the places where they play. Members will sit in a compact group at the games and lead the songs and cheering. It is to be a permanent organization at Hamline.

The Minnesota Daily: Tryouts were held for the Minnesota movie, "Gopher Love," which will be filmed on the campus. Although more than 50 students appeared for the trials the casting committee were undecided, (until a later date) and meanwhile they are asking for more candidates.

Twenty men and twenty women will be chosen to be tested front of the camera. The picture, which is a full-length production, will be shown in the music building.

MISS MICHAEL TALKS ON CARE OF THE SICK

The Home Training classes have just completed the Unit on Home Nursing. In this unit a few of the more simple illnesses—their prevention, care and cure were studied. Miss Michael gave a talk in connection with this topic. Home and community relationships were also studied. This takes into consideration the relation the home and community have one with the other in regard to schools, churches and other public buildings. It also deals with their relationship in regard to the sanitation and beautifying of the home and community. Personal Hygiene is the third unit which has been studied so far.

Outside of the regular study, the classes have given two teas—one for the faculty and the other for the mothers.

ESSENTIALS TESTS STUMP STUDENTS

THERE ARE MANY HIGH MARKS DESPITE STATE BOARD'S NEW TRICK

The first minimum essentials quiz of the year has been given, corrected and the results compiled. Those who have taken them in other years thought they would be easy, but alas for their hopes! The Freshmen, who have never had them before, wrote the easier of the two tests—one identical with those of last year, with the following results: 18 in the 90's, with a range of 98 to 38, and a median of 74, five points below that of last year.

The examination for the three upper classes was changed from those of previous years. Instead of the spelling words that everybody knew by heart, a new list of "demons" was given to the students. They counted 25 points; punctuation and sentence recognition 35 points; grammar 40 points. This last portion included correct forms of words, sentence construction and parts of speech. Because the examination was so different from that of last year, the record for this one needs to be improved. The Seniors led with a median of 83, the Juniors followed with 80, while the Sophomores had 71 for their median, with the result that the median for the Freshmen was 74 and for the three upper classes 79.

The following had the best records:

Seniors Select Colors, Flower and Motto

On Wednesday, the Seniors had an important business meeting for the purpose of selecting the class colors, motto and flower. After a great deal of debating, maize and white were chosen as class colors. As there are but three flowers to be had in the spring—the sweet pea, daisy, and tea rose—the selection of the class flower had to be chosen from them. The tea rose was chosen, since two-thirds of the class were in favor of it. Several mottos were written on the black-board. The motto, "In Ourselves our Future Lies."

REV. OLMSTED TALKS AT LAST HI-Y MEETING

Six members initiated by the Hi-Y club the members of the Hi-Y club spent a very interesting evening in the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening. Rev. Olmsted, pastor of the Congregational church, was the speaker of the evening. Rev. Olmsted spoke on the immensities of the universe and how thinking of them more firmly implant in us the knowledge of God.

After the talk by Rev. Olmsted the six new members, Gaylord Kinney, James Richards, Harry Bellnutt, Otto Dahl, Zane Smith, and Clarence Wetterland were introduced to the members and then put through the ritual. The more humorous part of the initiation will be held next week.

Who, What and Where

John Tribur has been chosen as vice president of the freshmen class at St. Cloud Normal.

The Misses Tornstrom, Reinertson, Sailer and Rickard visited the St. Cloud school Thursday. Friday morning, Miss Tornstrom gave a brief report of a lecture given by Edwin Markham, which she heard while visiting there.

The Seniors held an important meeting in the old Senior room Wednesday.

The Wednesday and Friday Glee clubs met together Wednesday.

While Miss Tornstrom and Miss Reinertson were in St. Cloud, Mr. Johnson took charge of Miss Tornstrom's English class and the following girls took charge of Miss Reinertson's gym classes: Charlotte Peters, Almira Christenson, Margaret Dillan, Irene Molstad and Hilda Dybvick.

Friday, Miss Michael gave an interesting talk to the Home Training girls on the care of a sick person.

One of the basketball girls, who is too modest to have her name printed, received a black eye during basketball practice last week.

Mr. Kasch and his football men stopped at St. Cloud for dinner, Friday, en route to Milaca.

Marjorie Oberst was absent from school last Thursday and Friday, due to the death of her mother. The members of the Senior class extend their sympathy to Marjorie. Sylvia Ericson accompanied her to Bella Plain to attend the funeral.

The football men were entertained by the Rotarians at dinner today.

Molly Molstad was elected captain of the all high girls' basketball team during practice session last night.

The Deadbeat's Fate

Breathes there a stude with soul so dead,

Who never to himself hath said,
"I'll pay my class dues now or bust!"

If such there be, go mark him well,
For him no bank account shall swell;
The miser horde from bad to 'wust'
Will wander down degenerate roads,
Unloved, unwept, despised as toads;
And when they're gone, we throw their dust

To East and West and South and North
And ardent hope that ne'er henceforth
A breed like theirs defiles our trust;
No angel at the golden stair
Shall welcome home a millionaire,
To the other place return he must!

Pay Your Dues Now!

ELLISON, HOOT AND HANSON ARE OUTSTANDING MEN OF BATTLE

The Blue and Whites calmed the Milaca eleven by defeating them 13 to 0 at the Milaca grounds on Friday.

Although the fifth victory was not counted in the conference schedule, it raised the percentage column considerably.

A very strong north wind blowing the length of the field was an item of the game and Capt. Creger, winning the toss, took advantage of it. After a few exchanges of punts, Brainerd received the ball on the 20-yard line, from where it was taken over for the first touchdown. Swanson carried the ball. An attempted pass for the extra point failed.

In the second quarter the ball saw-sawed back and forth; neither team at any time threatening. It was snowing so hard as the half ended that a spectator standing at one end of the field could not see the goal posts at the other end.

Milaca started the third quarter with a passing attack which proved fairly successful. This with a penalty brought the ball to Brainerd's 15-yard line.

Milaca passed again and Walter Haultala intercepted and made his spectacular 98-yard run for a touchdown. Fuller and Guin gave him perfect interference. Swanson kicked for the extra point.

Both teams fumbled considerably on account of the cold weather but the only time that this proved critical was the time Brainerd fumbled on their own 30-yard line. Milaca recovered and after completing two passes brought the ball within three yards of the goal. On the next play they got within six inches of the goal. A line plunge failed and on the next play a poor pass from the center was the cause of another fumble which Creger recovered. After getting the ball back to the center of the field, Kasch sent in substitutes to finish the game.

The most outstanding men in the game were: Ellison with his strong defensive playing; Haultala with his wonderful punts—even against the wind; Hanson, when put at half back, hit the line for six and eight yard gains.

The line-ups follow:
Brainerd—Guin, le; Welliver, lt; Greener, lg; Ellison, c; Hanson, rg; Creger, rt; Barnes, re; Wise, q; W. Haultala, lb; Swanson, rh; Fuller, fb; substitutions, Goedderz for Guin LaCourse for Welliver, Abrahamson for Greener, Fox for Hanson, Buscher for Wise, and A. Haultala for W. Haultala.

Milaca—Warner, le; Wilkins, lt; Geurkink, lg; F. Olson, c; Bradshaw, rg; Schultz, rt; Solberg, re; Lemay, q; M. Lerschinger, rh; R. Lerschinger, rh; P. Olson, fb.

Referee—Ward, Foley.

After the game, the sophomore girls, under the leadership of Louise Johnson, served a very delicious lunch for the team. The boys tried to show their appreciation by giving the girls a few yells under the leadership of William Johnstone.

Brainerd plays Crosby-Ironton for the championship next Friday. The Brainerd boys are determined to win this game so it will be the game of the season.

FROSH TO HAVE HARD TIME PARTY NOV. 18

Gerald Cass presided over his first meeting Tuesday, November 1. Helen Sheets, the class secretary, appointed a committee to help her in collecting the dues from the different assemblies.

The class decided that we hold a hard-time party, November 18, in the gymnasium. The refreshment committee is to hold a meeting some time this week to decide upon the lunch. Another committee will take charge of decorating the gymnasium.

O! We'll have one grand time, I'll tell you!

M. E. A. WILL GIVE STUDENTS HOLIDAY

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, the Minnesota Educational Association holds its annual convention at Minneapolis. Most of the teachers of Brainerd attend this convention, and derive a great deal of benefit from it. The students get as much joy out of this as the teachers, as a two days vacation is nothing to be laughed at.

Roger Callahan (at soph meeting) Mr. President, please speak a little louder; I can't hear you.

Normal Training Notes

Due to the fact that Miss Hanson will be out of town at the M. E. A. next week, the girls will have charge of the Normal classes.

The normal girls are having a party in the sewing room at the high school Saturday, November 5, from 2 until 6 o'clock. Verna Persson, Hortense McKay, and Mardelle Winters are the committee of entertainment.

During child study class the girls were discussing the advisability of doing at least one hard task each day to develop initiative. The girls declared that getting up each morning was hard enough to develop initiative sufficient for the rest of their lives.

Murrah! The girls have at last succeeded in persuading Mardelle that we cannot do without her cheery presence and have induced her to continue school in preference to an experiment in matrimony.

The farm girls in the normal department have decided that husking corn is a rather romantic business after all since they have discovered that the same idea is expressed in these words: "Pluck away the frost-kissed leaves."

Mardelle Winters brings "Oswald" to school occasionally to entertain the girls. "Oswald" is a small baby fish that Mardelle has owned for some time.

Faculty Members Visit St. Cloud Schools Thurs.

Some of the members of the faculty visited the schools in Saint Cloud Thursday.

Miss Tornstrom visited their high school there. At the time mentioned, the students of the school were celebrating a recently gained football victory. The halls and rooms all over the building were decorated in orange and black, which, to my notion must have been very attractive indeed. While telling of this Miss Tornstrom told us, on the following morning of a poet, Mr. Edward Markham, of whom some of us have and others will hear about. He has a great sense of humor and evidently carries his audience on every point which he relates. He has won many prizes for his poems, one in particular, for his great poem about Abraham Lincoln. We all hope to hear more of him sometime.

The three other teachers, Miss Rickard, Miss Reinertson, and Miss Sailer visited the grade schools where various games were played.

ENGLISH II CLASSES

AROUSE NEW INTEREST

Miss Schow's English classes suddenly turned into high pressure salesmen a few days ago. Students were observed hurrying through the hall with a number of articles of practical usefulness under their arms.

While they were in class they would each, in turn, arise and expound the singular or aggregate values of their particular convenience.

William Marshall, for instance, demonstrated a shiny mouth organ very effectively by playing a number of popular tunes. (Bill tells us confidentially that he has done the same thing for two years.)

The purpose of this exhibition was to enable the average student to cultivate better description and more accurately picture things that ordinarily occur in our domestic lives.

Miss Graham: What filled this century? (Meaning religious wars). Eleanor S.: A hundred years.

SOPHS ADOPT A CONSTITUTION

ALSO APPOINT A DISHWASHING COMMITTEE FOR COMING PARTY

The sophs had another meeting on Thursday. After the usual business procedure, the constitution was read and adopted and the date of the party decided. It is to be on the nineteenth of this month. Sophs, pay your dues and be there. There's nothing to hold you back because a dishwashing committee was appointed (to the disappointment of many), so there's no chance of your having to do that.

ALUMNI

Another of our last year's graduates, Vervin Taylor, married last week. B. H. S. gives you their best wishes "Bud."

Emma Erickson of '24, is home for a vacation. She is taking a Public Health Course at the "U". Earl Derocher has formed a partnership with his father, in the Reo car business. We all hope you make good, "Fat."

Helen Davis '27, it is reported is married. W. L. Bruce is the lucky fellow. As yet they are residing in Cashmere, Washington.

James Mayo class of '26, is going to attend the Dunwoody Institute in Minneapolis.

THE ROTARIANS

FETE TEACHERS

THE FACULTY REPORT ROTARIANS IN GOOD HEALTH AND FINE SPIRITS

The annual banquet tendered by the Rotarians to the teachers of Brainerd was held at the Ransford on Tuesday, November 1. The dining room was decorated in Halloween motifs—skeletons leered wherever one looked, and black and orange decorated the tables. Jollity reigned supreme—laughter was the keynote even before the stunts began—Frank Johnson and Walter Wieland ably seconded each other in keeping things moving. The usual stunts and take-offs appeared in different guise. Al Ebert, Frank Johnson and Perry Newton got all "dolled up" in some borrowed dresses and hats to impersonate some of the ladies on the faculty and sang songs complimentary to Mr. Cobb. Mr. Cobb was again the center of interest when he was presented with a ring from the teachers—said ring being the tinkle of a bell. Then the newest recruits to the Rotarians were initiated along with two of the faculty members. With George Ribbel master of ceremonies, the issue was long in doubt until the men sat down and the ladies were presented with candy.

Mr. Wieland welcomed the teachers and expressed the pleasure of the Rotarians in having them as guests, and spoke of the moral training the teachers might give the students in their charge. Miss Tornstrom replied for the teachers and thanked the Rotarians for the most pleasant evening of the year.

THE BURGER COLUMN

By Ham and Lim

Well, here we are at last. It took a long time to get organized, but now we're here to stay. Have you noticed the heading of the paper? The names of all the members of the staff are on it. When Milford announced the names of those selected for the Staff, the last name he read was, David Weber, Feature Editor. Davy piped up with, "Can you feature that?"

Miss Marshall told her English classes to write a theme on "The Result of Laziness." One of the papers handed in had nothing written on it.

A new tongue twister has been going around the school. We're willing to bet you can't say this one fast.

Does a doctor doctor a doctor the way the doctor doctor wants to be doctor or does the doctor doing the doctoring doctor the other doctor in his own way?

Some people have called our attention to the fact that most of the funny cracks are pulled either in Miss Laipple's classes or in Miss Graham's. Here are some that were not. Mr. Gridley gave the following assignment in Physics: For tomorrow take Lightning and go to Thunder.

Carl Zapffe handed a poem to Milford Downie for the Brainonian saying, "I put my whole mind on this poem." The poem was blank verse.

Miss Tornstrom sent a note around asking the teachers to be more quiet. The noise disturbs Bobby Anderson's sleep.

Miss Sersen (giving notes for Home Nursing): "I guess I won't take Convulsions until Monday."

Miss Gipsen: "Robert, where is paper money printed?" Robert A.: "On both sides."

Miss Sersen (giving notes as to the care of a sick patient): "Always wash the patient's hands and face before serving them."

Miss Gipsen: "How badly did New York want the Democratic Convention in 1924?"

Fay L.: "They wanted it so bad that they fought like cats and dogs."

Miss Rickard (in Glee Club): "Now, girls, go back to 'his arms'—"

Miss Taylor: "What did Chaucer's pilgrims go to Caunterbury for?" Senior: "Religious freedom."

BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL, NOVEMBER 8, 1927

NUMBER 8

THREE BRAINERD REPRESENTATIVES
ATTEND M. H. S. P. A. CONVENTION

CONVENTION WAS HELD AT MARSHALL HIGH, MINNEAPOLIS, FRIDAY, SATURDAY

The annual convention of the Minnesota High School Press Association was held at Marshall high school, Minneapolis, November 4 and 5. Many well known newspaper editors and University professors spoke about different phases of the question of publishing high school papers. Edward Markham also spoke and read several of his best known poems.

All day Friday, until 4:30 o'clock, was occupied by the several speakers. Each man pointed out mistakes made by practically every school publication and told the high school students who were there how they might improve their papers.

Friday evening there was a banquet and dance for all of the delegates. There were toasts by many present and singing and musical numbers by some of the delegates. The dance followed soon after the dinner.

Saturday morning there were speeches in the Marshall high auditorium and the convention ended with the annual business meeting with the election of officers.

Professor Gallup of University of Iowa, Professor Johnson of U. of M., P. J. Halstead, night editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, Dean Johnson of U. of M., and Mr. Swanson, managing editor of The Minneapolis Journal all gave hints as to enlarging and writing high school papers, annuals and magazines.

The Brainerd delegates, who were Milford Downie, Donald McNamara and Allen Johnson were housed at two of the "lawgives" on Fraternity Row, where they were cordially welcomed and entertained.

Friday afternoon and part of the morning Saturday were spent in discussion where the delegates threshed out their several problems. The discussion groups were the most helpful means of obtaining information wanted, according to our representatives.

Professor Gallup of the University of Iowa gave an extremely interesting talk on the "Sins of High School Journalists," on Saturday morning, in which he stated that the most important things that a school paper could print were features and editorials.

Tuesday morning the delegates gave a report on the convention in the assembly.

GIRLS' REGULAR SQUAD
PREPARES FOR SEASON

Due to the limited facilities, it has been necessary to select from the entire group out for basketball a smaller group which is known as the "squad."

Those girls selected give evidence of physical endurance as well as ability in handling of the ball.

The points upon which they were chosen were: speed, team work, skill in shooting and guarding, and attitude toward correction.

While it is probable that from the squad will be selected a team to represent the school in inter school contests, it does not mean that a non-squad member is not eligible to play should she show progress throughout the season. Positions are open up to the time of the game.

It is not the policy of Miss Reinertson to select a first and second team without openings for other girls.

Early this week the squad will meet to elect a captain and begin practice in fundamentals.

The following people were chosen on the squad: Almira Christenson, Roberta Crawford, Hilda Dybvick, Myrtle Hegstad, Wilma Helgeson, Margaret Jackson, Bernice Jepsen, Dorothy Kleven, Minnie Markwitz, Irene Molstad, Borghild Olson, Lorraine Palmer, Charlotte Peters, Myrtle Peterson, Edith Titus, and Anna Wahlstrom.

From time to time as vacancies occur additional tryouts will be given so that the membership of the squad will be kept at eighteen.

Senior Rings!

Well gang, our rings are here; and those that didn't go down to Burnett's and get them when they arrived yesterday can rush down there and get them now.

Knock-out looking, aren't they All three styles.

It's easy to tell the Seniors from the rest of the students now.

EXCHANGE

The Hamline Oracle: Hamline "U" has a new organization, authorized by the Student Senate. This is a roster club which will follow the teams to all the places where they play. Members will sit in a compact group at the games and lead the songs and cheering. It is to be a permanent organization at Hamline.

The Minnesota Daily: Tryouts were held for the Minnesota movie, "Gopher Love," which will be filmed on the campus. Although more than 50 students appeared for the trials the casting committee were undecided, (until a later date) and meanwhile they are asking for more candidates.

Twenty men and twenty women will be chosen to be tested front of the camera. The picture, which is a full-length production, will be shown in the music building.

MISS MICHAEL TALKS ON CARE OF THE SICK

The Home Training classes have just completed the Unit on Home Nursing. In this unit a few of the more simple illnesses—their prevention, care and cure—were studied. Miss Michael gave a talk in connection with this topic. Home and community relationships was also studied. This takes into consideration the relation the home and community have one with the other in regard to schools, churches and other public buildings. It also deals with their relationship in regard to the sanitation and beautifying of the home and community. Personal Hygiene is the third unit which has been studied so far.

Outside of the regular study, the classes have given two teas—one for the faculty and the other for the mothers.

ESSENTIALS TESTS
STUMP STUDENTSTHERE ARE MANY HIGH MARKS
DESPITE STATE BOARD'S
NEW TRICK

The first minimum essentials quiz of the year has been given, corrected and the results compiled. Those who have taken them in other years thought they would be easy, but alas for their hopes! The Freshmen, who have never had them before, wrote the easier of the two tests—one identical with those of last year, with the following results: 18 in the 90's, with a range of 98 to 38, and a median of 74, five points below that of last year.

The examination for the three upper classes was changed from those of previous years. Instead of the spelling words that everybody knew by heart, a new list of "demons" was given to the students. They counted 25 points; punctuation and sentence recognition 35 points; grammar 40 points. This last portion included correct forms of words, sentence construction and parts of speech. Because the examination was so different from that of last year, the record for this one needs to be improved. The Seniors led with a median of 83, the Juniors followed with 80, while the Sophomores had 71 for their median, with the result that the median for the Freshmen was 74 and for the three upper classes 79.

The following had the best records:

Freshman English—
Ruth Fallquist 98
Mardella Cunningham 97
Helen Noggle 97
Marie Hoffbauer 95
Evelyn Vaneck 95

Sophomore English—
Hattie Zawadzki 95
Junior English—
William McClennahan 98
Dorothy Fox 95
Mary Larkin 96
Ruth Dillan 96

Senior English—
Margaret Dillan 99
Elmer Anderson 98
Dorothy Kleven 97
Violet Hoston 96
Kathleen Early 95
Ida Olson 96
Lois Untereker 95
Beatrice Liners 95
Grace Inwards 95
Irene Molstad 95

Miss Marshall asked for a theme on any subject the writer might choose but it must contain at least two hundred words. One paper had on it:

My uncle was driving his car yesterday and he got a puncture. The other 188 words are not fit for publication.

THE ROTARIANS
FETE TEACHERSTHE FACULTY REPORT ROTARIANS IN GOOD HEALTH AND FINE SPIRITS

The annual banquet tendered by the Rotarians to the teachers of Brainerd was held at the Ransford on Tuesday, November 1. The dining room was decorated in Halloween motifs—skeletons leered wherever one looked, and black and orange decorated the tables. Jollity reigned supreme—laughter was the keynote even before the stunts began—Frank Johnson and Walter Wieland ably seconded each other in keeping things moving. The usual stunts and take-offs appeared in different guise. Al Ebert, Frank Johnson and Perry Newton got all "dolled up" in some borrowed dressed and hats to impersonate some of the ladies on the faculty and sang songs complimentary to Mr. Cobb. Mr. Cobb was again the center of interest when he was presented with a ring from the teachers—said ring being the tinkle of a bell. Then the newest recruits to the Rotarians were initiated along with two of the faculty members. With George Ribbel master of ceremonies, the issue was long in doubt until the men sat down and the ladies were presented with candy.

Mr. Wieland welcomed the teachers and expressed the pleasure of the Rotarians in having them as guests, and spoke of the moral training the teachers might give the students in their charge. Miss Tornstrom replied for the teachers and thanked the Rotarians for the most pleasant evening of the year.

ORDINANCE WILL COVER OIL BURNERS

Fire, Light and Water Committee, City Engineer and Attorney to Draft Ordinance

WORK WITH EXPERTS

Council Grants Permit of Tyrholm Co. to Erect Wholesale Gas Bulk Station

The fire, light, and water committee, together with City Engineer R. T. Campbell and City Attorney D. H. Fullerton were ordered to work on the proposition of drafting an ordinance relative to oil burners in this city. Alderman R. H. Paine moved the resolution at last night's council meeting, seconded by Alderman Martin Anderson. It was endorsed by the unanimous vote of all present.

The committee was authorized to call in oil burner dealers and experts in this city to present information relative to the most satisfactory method of handling this proposition for all concerned.

Every possible phase of the matter will be taken into consideration, installation, safety, construction. Whether or not the new ordinance would conform with the methods used by citizens who have already installed oil heaters was not discussed by the council. The committee was allowed their own time to work out the best possible solution.

Favor Station Permit

The council went on record by the vote of five to two favoring the granting of a permit to the Walter P. Tyrholm Co. for the erection of a wholesale gasoline bulk station on the northeast corner of Seventh and Maple streets in lot 19, block 71.

The calling of ayes and nays recorded the following votes: in favor, Aldermen Martin Anderson, W. J. Hall, Chris Elvig, C. G. Holmstrom, Andrew Wesley; against, Aldermen Ernest Ritari, R. H. Paine. A resolution presented immediately following granted permission to the Tyrholm Co. to install pipe lines hooking up the tanks.

The motion permitting the Tyrholm Co. to erect the station came as an amendment to the original motion by Aldermen Paine and Ritari that the request of the Tyrholm Co. be not granted in that particular location.

Alderman Ritari expressed the opinion that the location such as it was in the business district was a poor place for the installation of the tanks.

Alderman Paine stated that it had come to his attention that many of the residents in that location were opposed to it on the grounds that it would not be safe.

Alderman Martin Anderson made a strong plea to allow the permit to be granted.

Walter P. Tyrholm presented letters from business men interested in endorsing the location. He stated that there was less than the average hazard connected with the tanks.

The monthly report of the Water and Light department showed receipts for the month of October, $10,912.79, disbursements, $18,009.72.

The assessment roll covering the sprinkling of streets for 1928 computed at the rate of 10 cents per front foot was approved.

The property taxed fronts the following streets: Front street, 4th to 8th; Laurel street, 5th to 8th; South Fifth street, Front to Laurel; South Sixth street, N. P. tracks to Maple; South 7th street, Front to N. P. Mill spur; South Eighth street, N. P. tracks to railway mill spur.

The following applications for milk and cream licenses as approved by the dairy inspector were granted: Mrs. O. Emilson, Swan Peterson, Charles Oravala, O. J. Nelson, Johnson Brothers, John P. Ring, Harry Sandgren, Ira Swift, David Dandberg, Frank Wolvert, Maurice Le-Moine, A. Wolleat, Fred A. Larson, Nestor Fallman.

The council authorized the purchasing committee to purchase equipment for the Brainerd Fire Department as requested by Fire Chief McGinn.

TELL COURT OF ALLEGED ASSAULT

John Bryant and Roy Bryant, Defendants Are First Witnesses Called

CASE OPENS TODAY

Jenkins and Pine River Men Charged With Assault Upon Marshal

John Bryant and Roy Bryant, of Jenkins were brought to trial before Judge Bert Fessler in district court this morning on the charge of assault upon Hjalmer A. Olson, marshal of Jenkins village at a dance at Jenkins on October 16.

The court room was crowded with witnesses and parties interested from Pine River and Jenkins.

The two of a party of four requested a separate trial. Howard Reddick and Frank Crummit, of Pine River implicated in the same offense will be given a separate trial.

Bert T. Heath, attorney for the two, questioned the office of Olson as a duly qualified officer. He explained that Olson was appointed by the village of Jenkins for the purpose of policing the dance but contended that he was not a duly qualified officer within the meaning of the law in not having been appointed according to the statutes, that the alleged assault did not occur in the dance hall but after the dance and across the street from the hall.

Roy Bryant, first witness called this morning testified that the argument started at 12:15 a. m. following a fight between two boys. Bryant stated that he was one of a number who witnessed the fight and who yelled "Let them fight." He said that Olson walked over to him and told him to be quiet or he would put the handcuffs on him. He testified that the officer struck him first and later hit him over the head with the handcuffs. He asserted that he did not strike Olson.

On questioning he admitted that one year ago he had an argument with Olson but he could not remember what it was about. Since that time up till the night of the dance the two had not spoken to each other than casually.

Roy Bryant, Jenkins was the second witness called.

County Attorney W. F. Wieland represented the state.

The jury was picked as follows: Louis Nesheim, Mrs. Julia Bodle, William Huseby, W. Badeaux, Mrs. James Thurston, E. M. Jones, Mrs. Harry George, Mrs. F. J. Engelhart, Jacob Hass, Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, E. L. DeBell, Mrs. A. J. Nelson.

BIBLE IS CORRECT SCIENTIFICALLY

So Tells Rev. Morris L. Eversz to Congregation Sunday Evening

SCIENCE TOLD IN BIBLE

Geology, Meteorology, Medicine, Mental Science, Are Discussed

"While the Bible does not use strictly scientific language, the Bible is scientifically correct," Rev. Morris L. Eversz told his congregation at the First Methodist church Sunday evening when he discoursed on the subject "Is the Bible Scientifically Correct?"

"The archeologists' spade is turning up new evidence every year corroborating its history, the last being the excavations at Angora A. S. Minor, uncovering the records of Augustus Caesar confirming St. Luke's record of the date of the birth of our Savior," Rev. Eversz stated.

"The Bible's references to geology are correct. First, chaos and darkness, then light, then water, then land, then vegetation, and so on to the end of creation. The Bible is correct in its use of botanical terms. Linnaeus, the great Swedish naturalist, classified plants according to their flowers, but Moses classified them according to their seeds as botanists do today. As to zoology, the Bible says the seas were inhabited first, the land afterward, antedating our latest scientific findings by many centuries. Concerning meteorology, the science of the winds, Lieutenant Murray discovered that the air currents move from the equator to the poles and back again, the cold currents lower, warm currents higher. The Bible said the same thing 3100 years ago. Read Ecclesiastes 1-6. As for mental science, Sir Francis Bacon is supposed to have discovered the inductive method of reasoning, that is, from facts to conclusion.

"But 1,000 years before Christ, David and Job argued the Almighty-ness of God from his wondrous works. Jesus said 'The works I do testify of me,' and the psalmist challenged 'O taste and see that the Lord is good.' As for medical terms, Moses taught that the life of the flesh was in the blood centuries before Harvey discovered its circulation. The Bible's saying that man's body is made from the dust of the ground is confirmed by the anatomical chemist today. In short, the Bible, properly understood as a revelation from God to man through human history is fully abreast the best science of our times. Frederick Ross exclaims 'Everywhere in the Scriptures reigns an accuracy worthy of God' and Herschell said 'All human discoveries are but for the purpose of confirming more thoroughly the truths of Holy Writ'." concluded the speaker.

Next Sunday evening the discussion will be on "The Bible As Literature."

"The only one who was 'Sea Sprite' cabin boy. In two strides Haley was amongst them and seizing the collar of the boy he shook him till his teeth rattled. Holding the kid by the collar he turned on the crew. 'Which one of you swine gave this kid liquor?' he roared. No one answered and Haley turned to the frightened kid. 'Who gave it to you?' he asked. The kid whimpered, then with a frightened glance at the crew he murmured, 'It was Limey.'"

And he knew now that he was tired of the sea, and that he wanted to get away from the sight and smell of waves and wind.

"Carry my bag up, kid, and when you leave the boat, go home. No hanging around the fellows, and if I catch you in Frisco after you've been off the boat an hour, I'll tan you within an inch of your life." Haley liked the kid and he really meant it, and the boy, glad that his long trip was over, grinned up at him before he replied, "Guess I'm going home alright. I want to see Ma—but this seal-skin ain't for her, an' I guess that I got someone else looking for me."

Haley thought of Rawson, the cockney sailor, and the women that would wait for him. Then looking at the kid he smiled. "Look out you do, and when you get back on that farm of yours, stick to the pigs and chickens and forget the sea." The kid grinned, grabbed Haley's bag, and with a would-be joke was Jimmy, the cabin boy. In two strides Haley was amongst them and seizing the collar of the boy he shook him till his teeth rattled. Holding the kid by the collar he turned on the crew. "Which one of you swine gave this kid liquor?" he roared. No one answered and Haley turned to the frightened kid. "Who gave it to you?" he asked. The kid whimpered, then with a frightened glance at the crew he murmured, "It was Limey."

Haley's hand shot out and grasped the Cockney by the collar. "Did you give the boy this poison?" Limey, for all his habits, was no coward, and wriggling in Haley's grasp he snarled, "Well, what of it? I guess the kid knows what he wants. I ain't playing no wet nurse to no kid." Limey could be American when he wanted to.

Haley's fist shot out, and connected under the jaw of the sailor. Limey landed in the scuppers, where he lay groaning. "You," Haley called to Kost, "take Limey with you, and if I find that you go anywhere before you put this kid on the Oakland ferry, as God's my judge, it'll be the last place that you ever go to. Get out, and hurry."

A watchman from the fur company clambered aboard as the crew left, and with his duties over for the time Haley followed with his bags, and stood on the docks of Frisco at last. Gazing back he looked at the tall spars of the "Sea Sprite." Damn it, he loved that little boat. There weren't so many top-sail schooners left, and the "Sea Sprite" could out-sail the best of them. She'd do all right, but

Yesterday Today Always
The GREATEST MOTHER

THE Greatest Mother—Yesterday, Today, Always, becomes increasingly evident to the people of the United States as they witness the work of the Red Cross in disaster relief and peace time pursuits. Like a devoted mother, no task is too great, no task too trivial if it makes life easier for some one. Lawrence Wilbur painted the Red Cross poster seen here. He has done other notable posters for the Red Cross, but in his latest work he has scored heavily. The embracing gesture of the nurse symbolizes the comfort and protection extended to the hundreds of thousands of disaster refugees cared for by the Red Cross during the past year. Seventy-seven disasters in all took place throughout the United States. The Mississippi flood rendered 600,000 homeless and the Red Cross took care of them all. Five million members is the goal set for the annual membership Roll Call which takes place from Armistice to Thanksgiving day. Membership in the Red Cross means an appreciation of the work of the organization and the maintenance of its service. Millions of Americans feel grateful to the Greatest Mother for assistance in the daily routine of their lives. Home Hygiene, Nutrition and First Aid courses have saved lives and made thousands healthier. The disabled ex-service men still lean heavily upon the Red Cross despite the fact that war has been over nine years. Seventy-three thousand of them were helped each month of the past year, and the Red Cross is happy at the thought of being able to render service

Old Folks Need
a Mild Laxative
—Not a "Physic"

DR. W. B. CALDWELL
AT THE AGE OF 83

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help, else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN

cheery "goodbye," flung over his shoulder, he hurried away.

By now the "Sea Sprite" was alongside her wharf, and the rattal denizens of the docks commenced to fraternize with her crew. Brady, though not much of a man, was a good mate, and he chased them about their jobs, but more than one bottle of would-be liquor found its way on board. The port officials kept Haley busy in his cabin, and when at last the "Sea Sprite" was okayed, and arrangements made for unloading her cargo, some time had passed. Haley was impatient. Long experience with port captains had taught him the uselessness of hurrying them, but never before had time dragged as it did now.

Taking a bottle from the cupboard, he poured the official a drink, a stiff one, and took a similar one himself. It had no effect. Liquor knew he; it was warmth and company he wanted. Meanwhile the crew had tied up the schooner, and by the sounds of ribald mirth that trickled aft from the peak, Haley guessed that again Brady had let him down, and that the men were going to be drunk before they even landed. "Why in God's name did the sea make such brutes of men," and more than anything else, what did that fool Brady always insist on getting boozed before his duties were over?

Stumbling feet on the top of the stairway told him that his mate had run true to form. Lurching from side to side, Brady tumbled down the steps, and standing in front of Haley, he wagged his head, and with an owlish expression on his face imparted the information that "They're all drunk, an' I'm drunk, an' they want to go ashore. Le'sh go ashore, an' we'll all be drunk." He started across the room toward the closet where the liquor was kept, but Haley, placing his hand on his shoulder swung him into his bunk, and going over to the cupboard turned the key in the lock.

"Now, I suppose there isn't a sound man on the ship and by the time that they all get ashore they'll be in the right condition to meet the bums, and worse who will be waiting for them. A full sealer doesn't dock every night, and with a touch of humor that he was far from feeling. "And from the sound they'll sure be full sealers that go ashore from the 'Sea Sprite' tonight."

Brady was asleep by now, and realizing that he would have to be left on board in any case, and that he would know his duties when he awoke, Haley left him lying where he fell, and went on deck. The hands were just coming from the fo'castle and among them, swaying from side to side as he laughed at at the same time, he was glad to get away from the hell that she had been for the last long year.

The voice of a little urchin brought him back to the work on hand. "Carry your bags?" he piped. Haley grinned as he watched the kid trying to get his heavy bags onto his shoulder, then tossing him half a dollar he swung them under his arm and started towards Mother Wards, where he had lived every time that he had visited Frisco during the past ten years. So it is with sailors. All they know is the sea, and though its moods are endless they are ever the same. Its sons, those men that dwell and strive thereon become as its, and though their fancies change like its tides they are in the same endless cycle, and their lives are lived in the same mould from generation to generation. If the boatswain of the "Half Moon" could talk with a boatswain of the "Leviathan" their thoughts would be the same. It is the same sea they sail, they are the same sailors.

Haley was gloriously happy. Light of foot and heart he trudged through the odors of rope and tar that permeated the neighborhood. Though the "Sea Sprite" and other similar vessels had housed him for the greater part of his life, he was never home except in the gloomy streets of the Frisco waterfront. Instead of monotonous stretches of unbroken ice, he could turn to places he knew. Each corner and dimly lit saloon whispered of memories of past visits. There was the glorious likelihood that he would meet someone he knew, but more than anything else, the night that he had looked forward to for all these months was here. Adventure lay to hand.

To the dockrat denizens of San Francisco, Hurricane Haley and his kind were adventurers, but still victims to be plundered as they came. Yet these very victims found their greatest adventure in being plundered by women and satellites who would pandor to their whetted desires.

Meanwhile he was happy. A halt blind beggar caught his attention and he emptied his pockets of all his small change. A Salvation Army lassie received a dollar bill. Hurricane, even though he might not be contented was happy. It was a long hike from the docks to Mother Wards, and by the time that he arrived, his appetite for pleasure and excitement had been whetted to razor keenness. Mother Ward was pleased to see him, in the same way that she was pleased to see every other retreating sailor, who would pay without question, more than triple the value of the dingy room that she had for hire. To Hurricane, however, it was grand.
